WHO WE ARE

The Council of American Structural Engineers (CASE) represents more than 160 structural engineering firms dedicated to maintaining structural engineering as a respected, profitable and robust industry. CASE offers SEs the opportunity to grow their businesses through shared best practices, reduced professional liability exposure and increased profitability.

WHAT WE DO

CASE develops guidelines and contracts that outline best practices, along with extensive risk management tools designed to keep liability in check. CASE provides educational programs and seminars designed to enhance business practices and reduce risk; maintains relationships with NCSEA, SEI and AISC.

OUR MISSION

- Reduce claims
- Increase profitability
- Improve quality
- Enhance management practices

WHY YOU SHOULD JOIN

CASE membership gives your firm access to practical resources and tools that will help you manage risk, draft smarter contracts, learn sound business practices, and grow business relationships by sharing ideas and information with peers.

"Being involved with CASE has enhanced our firm in numerous ways...providing documents that help standardize our business practices in areas such as scope of work, specifying for and working with specialty structural engineers, contract language, etc. CASE's documents on structural engineering reports and site visits are used as training tools for developing our staff."
