

EXAMPLE CONTRACT LANGUAGE<sup>1</sup>

Constructability Reviews

Constructability review meetings offer the Client, Design Professional and construction contractor opportunities to review and concur on various design and construction issues which help minimize the occurrence and scope of potential change orders and schedule delays during construction. During any constructability review meetings, the parties shall identify issues and make decisions concerning the construction documents to promote construction documents that are reasonably coordinated, complete and buildable.

The Client and Design Professional agree to attend __ (indicate number) __ constructability reviews or as the parties determine appropriate for the Project at times and locations agreeable by the parties. The Client also agrees to require the construction contractor and other appropriate parties to attend the constructability review as appropriate.

---

<sup>1</sup> This information is provided for educational purposes only and is under no circumstances to be construed as legal advice. If you have questions regarding contracts, specific contract provisions, or other legal matters, please consult with your attorney. The author and ACEC disclaim any and all liability for damages or losses of any kind, including direct, indirect, incidental, consequential or punitive damages, and attorneys' fees or costs, arising out of or relating to any use of this information.